

Phil's Poem

Phil, the small business owner,
With a heart full of dreams,
He took a leap of faith one day,
And built his future, it seems.

With passion, hard work, and drive,
He crafted his vision with care,
A small store that sold handmade goods,
And a smile that lit up the air.

Days turned into weeks,
And weeks turned into years,
His business grew, and so did he,
With success, pride, and cheers.

Phil learned to face the challenges,
That come with running a shop,
But he never lost sight of his dream,
And the reason he took that first hop.

Now his store is a thriving place,
With customers who keep coming back,
And Phil feels a sense of pride,
For all that he's been able to stack.

Owning his small business,
Meant freedom and control,
A chance to make a difference,

And a purpose that he could call his own.

So here's to Phil, the small business owner,
With a heart full of dreams and a story to be told,
May his legacy live on forever,
And his spirit remain bold.
