

Business or Hobby?

Small business and hobby are two different things, although they may share some similarities.

A small business is an enterprise that is operated for profit, with the goal of earning revenue and growing the business over time.

Small businesses may offer products or services to customers, and typically require a significant amount of time, effort, and investment to operate successfully.

Small businesses may be owned by one person, a group of individuals, or a larger organization.

On the other hand, a hobby is an activity that is pursued for pleasure or personal fulfillment, rather than for profit.

Hobbies may involve creating, collecting, or participating in a variety of activities, such as art, music, sports, or crafts. Hobbies may be pursued in one's free time, and often require less investment than a small business.

While there may be some overlap between small businesses and hobbies (such as a small business owner who is passionate about their work), the key difference is that small businesses are primarily focused on generating revenue, while hobbies are pursued for personal enjoyment.
